

Being a stakeholder for Women on the Move

There are mutual benefits to being a WEMov stakeholder:

- Stakeholders can appear on our website with the logo of their institution and social media;
- Stakeholders are sent our newsletters, in which they can be featured with interviews;
- Stakeholders can be invited to our events and help us define our projects' strategies.

Stakeholders are expected to participate in our project by adding our logo to their website, and disseminating information on our activities. In a word, we expect from you that you support our project and feature an official

Current stakeholders

Our network's stakeholders include EU Commissioner for Equality Helena Dalli's cabinet and the United Nations mandated University for Peace, as well as institutional partners such as the French Commission Nationale Consultative des Droits de l'Homme, and Dalia Leinarte, as well as cultural partners across Europe including the Croatian State Archives, the Finnish and French National Archives, the CDMH, Reykjavik Museum of Photography, the French Musée de l'Histoire de l'Immigration, and artist Holly Bynoe.

How to become a stakeholder

Contacts

contact@womenonthemove.eu

Chair of COST Action CA19112 Women on the Move

Marie Ruiz

marie.jose.ruiz@u-picardie.fr

Science Communication Coordinator

Livia Proisinger

livia.proisinger@gmail.com

Funded by the European Union

This publication is based upon work from COST Action WEMov, supported by COST (European Cooperation in Science and Technology). COST (European Cooperation in Science and Technology) is a funding agency for research and innovation networks. Our Actions help connect research initiatives across Europe and enable scientists to grow their ideas by sharing them with their peers. This boosts their research, career and innovation.

To learn more: womenonthemove.eu
cost.eu/actions/CA19112/

@WomenontheMoveCOSTCA19112

WEMov Women on the Move

COST CA19112 - LEAFLET FOR STAKEHOLDERS

Who we are

Women on the Move

(COST CA 19112) is an EU-funded international network that focuses on unveiling the presence and economic contribution of women migrant workers in the construction of Europe. Transdisciplinary,

Women on the Move gathers historians, sociologists, anthropologists, art historians, demographers, economists, ethnologists, specialists of gender and migration studies, geographers, law scholars, and political scientists, among others, all focusing on women's mobility in historical and contemporary settings. The network opens discussions between research fields by allying two emerging themes that have become central in recent scholarship: gender and migration.

Objectives and Outputs

Women on the Move aims to reach several goals. It will set up an online repository of primary sources and register of monuments on female migration that will be available to researchers worldwide. The network also plans to organize exhibitions (indoor, outdoor and virtual) as well as touristic walking tours on the theme of women's migration. Book series are being launched and the account of unknown success stories of female migrant workers will be published. Finally, the network will shoot documentaries based on female migrant interviews, and is creating a freely accessible MOOC.

A unique network

To recover gender issues traditionally erased in migration narratives, Women on the Move aims to unveil the presence and active participation of women migrants in the construction of Europe by showing to the public not only the constraints that women have to face in migration, but also their resources, power and agency. This will contradict macro-narratives on the vulnerability of women migrants, sometimes perceived as economic burdens in the welcoming societies. We hope to raise awareness on the active participation of women migrants in the economic construction of receiving nations, as successful workers. The results of our project should raise the quality of current debates on migration and unveil the presence of invisible migrants.

A 4-year project

The COST Action was launched in September 2020 and is due to end in September 2024, and over its lifetime it will organize events such as conferences, training schools and exhibitions. We hope to see this project continue beyond its 4-year lifetime, with another format.

